Let's Explore!

Let's read and listen to Sally's blog entry about the Guggenheim Museum.

* People began writing "blogs" in the mid-1990s, and their popularity spread.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Hello again, and welcome to my travel blog! My trip is almost over. Now I'm back in Bilboa to catch my flight tomorrow.

Yesterday I went to the Guggenheim Museum. I think it shows interesting collections of modern art. I looked at paintings by European and American artists of the 20th century. They were in a building that's a masterpiece of architecture, in my opinion. The building is stone, metal and glass. Glass walls connect huge stone blocks. They have a metal roof that looks like a dome.

From the outside, I think the top of the roof looks like a flower. Daylight comes in through the glass walls and the skylight. As I see it, it's magnificent!

The Simple Past Tense

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about actions that happened in the past.

To form the Simple Past tense of a regular verb (in the Simple Present tense), follow these rules:

Add -ed to the base form of the verb:

walk → walked

enjoy → enjoyed

For verbs that end in e, add -d to the base form:

like → liked

invite → invited

For verbs that end in a consonant and y, change the y to i. Then add -ed:

try → tried

study → studied

Some verbs do not follow the above rules. They are called irregular verbs. Here are the past tense forms of some irregular verbs:

Base Form	Simple Past Form
be	was/were
buy	bought
come	came
do	did
eat	ate
go	went
see	saw
sit	sat
